The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Andreozzi.

Andreozzi discloses a combination drinking container and straw comprising a container, a straw retaining member (40) formed in a wall of the container and a straw (flexible straw 34 and tube 20), a first downwardly extending end of the straw is in fluid communication with a chamber of the container and a second upwardly extending end (from 38 to 36).

For claims 5, 10, 11 and 12, the container is closed by a lid and the straw extends through an aperture in the lid to form a hinge.

For Claims 1, 6 and 11, the second end of the straw is defined as that portion extending from inner end (36) to outer end (38) as shown in Fig. 1, while the straw is disposed in the at least one retaining member as shown in Fig. 2, the part which is close or at the inner end (36) extends upward from the container, nothing prevents the straw from being sipped through in the Fig. 2 configuration.

Claims 1, 2, 6 and 7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Lynd et al. (Lynd).

Lynd discloses a combination drink container and straw comprising a container having a cap (14) forming a top wall enclosing a chamber and a straw retaining member (sleeve 32) formed in the top wall and a straw disposed in the straw retaining member.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Andreozzi in view of Lynd et al. (Lynd).

This rejection is made in the event that the straw can't include portions 34 and 20 and in the event that the lid can't be slid upwardly past inner end 36 of straw 34.

Andreozzi discloses the invention except for the first end of the straw extending into the container to terminate proximate a closed bottom of the container and a straw which has a loop which extends through an aperture in the lid to form a hinge for the lid. Lynd teaches a straw which is inserted through an aperture in a central portion of the lid so that a first end of the straw terminates proximate a closed bottom of a container. It would have been obvious to replace tube 20 of the container of Andreozzi with a lengthened portion of flexible straw 34 which is inserted through the aperture in the lid that is moved towards the central portion of the lid by modifying the size of the straw or the size of the aperture such that the aperture will frictionally engage the straw as taught by Lynd in order to improve the assembly of the lid and straw by making the assembly of two pieces instead of three pieces requiring less parts that are required to mate, in order to move the straw connection away from the rim of the container so that the rim doesn't interfere with the straw connection and in order to provide a friction fit between the straw and aperture in the lid to maintain removability and establish a fit which is substantially splash and spill proof.

Claims 3, 4, 8 and 9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Lynd in view of Cohen, deceased et al. (Cohen).

Lynd discloses the invention except for the loop which forms a handle. Cohen teaches the combination of a drinking container and a straw which forms a loop and the loop forms a handle. It would have been obvious to modify the straw to have a loop and the loop which functions as a handle in order to provide a straw which can be retained in a rigidly fixed position with respect to the container so that the container can be moved by handling of the straw alone and so that the straw doesn't become dislodged from its fixed position which causes some
